A Practical Furrier Wanted an Infallible Moth-Proof Receptacle The Infallible Moth-Proof Receptacle

We Are Now Offering the Public Is the Result

Twenty-five years' experience with fur, combating the destructive work of the clothes moth and experimenting with the ingenuity of the moth repellants offered the public led him to the conclusion that nothing as yet had been offered that was entirely satisfactory. He discovered that while in many cases the packing away of furs in tin paper bags, in moth balls, or moth flakes had resulted fairly satisfactory, in many other instances the strong gases which these preservatives had produced had somewhat damaged the fur of the garments, and also that the odor of tar, camphor and moth balls was offensive to many. He found that thoroughly cleaning the garments with wool or fur before putting them into airtight receptacles, WOOL-FUR PRESERVATIVE, THIEF-PROOF, any loss of luster, without any disagreeable odor attaching to them.

Proceeding Along These Lines of Discovery, an Air-Tight Receptacle Was Created, which when closed presents practically A SEALED BOTTLE. It is in construction a chemically treated heavy canvas bag, odorless, and mothproof, which you can hang up in a closet, on the wall, in your closet, or in your storage room. Aside from its properties as a moth repellent, it has the added one of being a thoroughly practical wardrobe that you can pack in your suit case and take with you on your travels, on a summer vacation, out camping, or anywhere you are going to spend a few days or weeks, and you can hang up your clothes in it feeling sure of their protection from dust, germs, or any other element likely to damage your garments.
